Local Gas Station Robbed Of Money

Piazza's Texaco Station was broken into Thursday night and robbed of money amounting to approximately $45.00.

This was the second time within less than a year that the same business has been burglarized. The first time it was looted of about $50.00 in cash.

Entrance was gained by breaking a window in the rear of the building which is located on Second and Ulman. The Cigarette machine was broken and all money in the machine cleaned out. Also in the cash register was taken as well as some change in a cigar box.

Bernie Piazza, owner of the Business said the burglary was reported to Sheriff Sylvan Ladner who is handling an investigation. However he said no clues in the way of finger prints were left which might lead the officers to the burglars.

Piazza added that his opinion was the entry and theft was committed by youngsters as the ice cream box was left open and some of the ice cream was missing. Although the cigarette machine was broken into and the money stolen, not one package of cigarettes was missing, Piazza added.

Piazza took over the business about 18 months ago. It was formerly run by Teddo Thomas.

TWO CARS IN ACCIDENT EARLY MONDAY MORNING

Two automobiles traveling west on the Highway 90 bridge were involved in an accident Monday morning about eight o'clock.

A 1955 Chevrolet owned and driven by James H. Hammett, 31, Baton Rouge, with his wife, three children and young niece had stopped for the red signal light at the Bay St. Louis intersection of the bridge.

Lawrence Fulwider, 77, driver of a 1951 Plymouth sedan, Beaumont, Texas was charged with failing to yield right of way to the car ahead, when he failed to stop at the signal light and rammed into the rear of the Hammett car.

Both men were returning to their homes from vacations. Fulwider was alone in his car. He told Highway Police Officer William Kenny, who investigated the accident he failed to notice the red signal light or the stopped car ahead of him. Both cars were towed to a garage by Porter's Wrecker, with damages estimated at $450 on Hammett's car and $400 on Fulwider's.

Kenny took the occupants of both vehicles in a patrol car to King's Daughters Hospital where they were examined by doctors. Mrs. Hammett is pregnant and was closely examined for possible shock. Injuries sustained were minor scratches by Hammett and all occupants were later taken by Patrolman Kenny to the bus station where they caught buses transportation to their homes.

THE COMMUTER PROBLEM

Throughout the years of its franchise on the Gulf Coast the L. & N. Railroad, the most solvent line in the country, has pursued a course of pressuring residents of the Mississippi Gulf Coast who largely depend on the line, as a medium of transportation for commuting for those residents of the area who are established in business or who work in New Orleans; and also for those persons who use train service to make frequent trips to the nearest large city for varied other reasons.

Prior to the days of super highways, short cuts, and high powered motor cars, the railway services, to a great extent, ran things. People were entirely dependent on services offered by them. With the mass production of automobiles and good roads, it became possible for the people to gain a medium of independence in transportation and the need for depending on train service was lessened.

However, a railroad can be the life blood of a community, and the L. & N. Railroad represented the economy of the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

Had the railroad treated the coast with consideration, had it foreseen the growth of the area, had it been wise enough to realize the potentials of what at one time was considered no more than playgrounds for city vacationers, and not communities where industries would play major roles, it might have pampered this section along its route. It might have spent very wisely some of its profits in developing and promoting an area which is rapidly developing into one of the most valuable in the entire Southland. Failure to do this, failing to look ahead, feeling the Coast would always be the lethargic somnolent area where people lazed and played, the L. & N. clipped each year, steadily losing its coast passengers.

It offered the most antiquated coaches and accommodations for its riders. It held one sooty smoky coal engine, long after diesel and electric trains were in use on practically all other lines through-out the entire country. It failed to install air conditioning so it became impossible not to do so. Its trains ran late, their engines frequently broken down. Working schedules of many commuters suffered badly from its inefficient service. Yet rates were steadily increased although no improvements were offered. Under such conditions as steady diet, it was only natural for passengers to tire of this type of service. Not alone because they tired of inefficient service, but because of irregularity of scheduled trains, many were forced to move back into the city. Men cannot consistently be late for work, too many hours are lost which shows production, thereby cutting output and reducing profits. Yet the railroad made no attempt to alleviate these conditions.

It even attempted in 1947 to discontinue all coast service. When this move was blocked by Railroad Commission, the L. & N. raised rates, a 40% increase was tried for by the line, but after a bitter battle between them and the people, the proposed increase was cut to 20%. In 1954 the line again began to flag its standard, the Gulf Coast, and took off several daily trains. Another bitter battle with its adversaries, the people supported by officials of Coast communities, versus the railroad began. This one ended in compromise with the Railroad stopping several former through trains to pick up and discharge local passengers.

Once again the L. & N. is threatening the Coast. It was clearly stated by W. G. Whitsett, L. & N. Official, at a meeting of the people called by the Railroad and held in Bay St. Louis several weeks ago, that unless something is done whereby the deficit on the commuter train is eliminated, the Railroad will very definitely make a move, and that move would be the discontinuance of the one and only commuter train left.

Should the suburban dweller be deprived of this last train it means many families must of necessity move back into urban areas. Not impressive when quickly said, but think what the removal of dozens of family unit means to a small locality. The butcher, the baker, the druggist, the grocer, town merchants, small town professional people, all suffer. Reduction in income to the entire communities. An economic setback.

Pressure must be brought on the L. & N. to keep this commuter service going for the Miss. Coast. This pressure must come from the entire group of communities situated along the route of the Railroad on the Coast. Public opinion and only public opinion can keep the railroad service for this area. The press helps by telling the world what the people feel. The people must tell the press. Keep your newspapers informed on your opinions. Join your community groups which are battling for this railway service. Keep the economic structure of the Mississippi Gulf Coast intact, and fight for the service from the Railroad which can mean the difference between thriving communities or a series of ghost towns for one of America's most beautiful and potentially productive areas.

TO OBSERVE SAFE BOATING WEEK, JUNE 30 - JULY 6TH.

The Bay-Waveland Coast Guard Auxiliary Flotilla 304 will join Flotillas throughout the country with some 440 other Auxiliary in a special observance of National Safe Boating Week, June 30 through July 6, Bay-Waveland, Flotilla Commander W. L. Argus announced today.

National Safe Boating Week was officially proclaimed as part of a nationwide campaign "to keep boating one of the safest of all outdoor activities" being sponsored by the U. S. Coast Guard and Coast Guard Auxiliary. The objective of the special observance is to call the attention of pleasure boatmen to the need for knowing and observing basic safe boating rules and regulations and for maintaining their craft in perfect mechanical condition.

In addition to the Auxiliary units, yacht clubs, boating organizations of all types, marine dealers and all persons interested in promoting safe boating are being asked to support their campaign.

Highlight of the week's activities at the Gulf Coast will be a Boat Show in Gulfport, July 4 and 5, sponsored by the American and 7, sponsored by the Coast Guard Auxiliary Flotilla of the Gulf Coast. On exhibition at the show will be a boat with all equipment necessary for boats to be able to receive the Coast Guard Auxiliary Examination decal. The Auxiliary will also conduct a demonstration of the courtesy examination.

The Bay-Waveland unit is planning to hold special free courtesy examinations of small boats, 65 feet and under, on the afternoon of Saturday, July 6. Commander Argus said Boatmen interested in having their boats inspected may contact either Commander Argus or Vice-Commander Charles Kalmbech for further details.

The Coast Guard Auxiliary was organized 19 years ago to assist the U. S. Coast Guard in promoting safe boating among pleasure boaters. It is an organization of private citizens who volunteer their services and knowledge in educating newcomers to boating in the safe operation and maintenance of their craft. The local flotilla was organized here several months ago.

This year, for the first time, the Auxiliary is sponsoring National Safe Boating Week to impress boaters with the importance of having their craft equipped properly and of practicing common sense and courtesy afloat.

Bridal Party

Adding to the numerous entertainments given in honor of popular bride-elect Karen Kergosien was a luncheon on Monday, June 10, in the Sun Room of the Reed Hotel.

"Heaven Knows, Mr. Allison," Receives Oscar Rating

The Oscar Parade for 1957 has started early at the Star Theatre, Sunday and Monday, "Heaven Knows, Mr. Allison," a picture of consummate artistry and deep feeling, solidly takes its place as an Academy Award-contender for this year. This may be heaping high praise on this fine Twentieth Century-Fox Cinemascope production in DeLuxe color, but that is just what is intended here. The picture is filled to overflowing with the kind of satisfying entertainment that few films achieve.

John Huston, who has a reputation for doing such things, has molded Charles Shaw's best-selling novel about a gentle man and a tough Marine marooned on a South Pacific Island behind enemy lines, into a compelling screen production. The incongruous relationship between the only two principal characters in the story is probably best illustrated by this bit of dialogue between "Mr. Allison" and "Sister Angela":

"I'm a big dumb guy, a Marine all through, like you're a nun. You got your cross, I got my globe and anchor. Other guys got their homes and families, I got the Corps like you got the Church."

The rapport between these two paradoxical characters is deep and understanding and when the feeling of love penetrates their consciousness it transcends all earthly bounds. It is something wonderfully beautiful to behold.

To Deborah Kerr, as the nun, and Robert Mitchum, as the Marine, high praise must go. Their sensitive performances lift "Heaven Knows, Mr. Allison" out of the ordinary and make it a masterpiece. The vicissitudes of their Robinson Crusoe life on the Japanese-infested island gave Director Huston the opportunity to inject physical action and humor into the story. For example, when Mr. Allison informs Sister Angela that they will have nothing but raw fish to eat, because fires will attract the Japs on the island, he supposes she won't mind, being a "mackerel snapper," which is a Marine term for Catholics who eat fish on Friday.

the bride-elect was wearing a raspberry pink linen frock with lavender hat and pink flowers. Mrs. Joseph Treutle mother of David Treutle, whose marriage to Miss Kergosien was celebrated on Saturday June 15th, was attractive in a cool pink cotton frock worn with white accessories. The guests of honor was presented with a gift of hand-made Belgian handkerchiefs. Additional guests present to greet Miss Kergosien were Mrs. Laurent Kergosien, Mrs. U. S. Cuevas, Mrs. Gaines Kergosien of Baton Rouge; Misses Kinta and Peggy Kergosien, who were attendants in the wedding party.

The floral centerpiece consisted of pink, purple and white asters in a white container, with streamers of lavender ribbon trailing the length of the table. The flowers were presented to the mother of the bride-elect at the conclusion of the affair.

SPEAKERS BUREAU FORMED BY MISS. FORESTRY ASSN.

Jackson, Miss. (Special)—A speakers bureau has been formed by the Mississippi Forestry Association to supply speakers to civic and business clubs and other groups throughout the state, according to an announcement by R. C. Allen, of Philadelphia, Association President.

Allen said that the idea of the bureau has been under consideration by the Association for some time to help fill the need for more forestry information.

The Association is composed of individuals, groups and companies interested in the advancement of forestry in Mississippi. It functions as a state-wide membership organization, educational in character.

"The talks," Allen said, "will present a concise picture of the present day forestry situation and the steps which need to be taken to fully develop the potential which exists."

Allen pointed out that the talks are designed to be of interest to every one and that local as well as state-wide information will be given. The list of speakers will include members of the Association's Board of Directors, professional foresters, and other persons affiliated with private and industrial forestry organizations. Clubs and other organizations which wish to obtain a speaker through the bureau should write the Mississippi Forestry Assn.,

"Designing Woman" At Hi-Way Drive-In Thursday - Friday

A novel story angle, hilariously sophisticated dialogue and captivating performances on the part of Gregory Peck, Lauren Bacall and Dolores Gray add up to one of the year's gayest romantic comedies in "Designing Woman", now on view at the Hi-Way Drive-In Theatre.

Produced by Dore Schary, and directed by Vincente Minnelli from a sparkling George Wells screen play, this story of a top New York sports-writer, who marries a top New York fashion designer and finds himself in a world of chic and glamour in sharp contrast to the two-fisted domain of his ringside associates, has a full measure of buncle, kedlam and breezy laugh situations.

Apparently no expense was spared in filming "Designing Woman" in Cinemascope and color. Its eye-filling backgrounds range from California's lush Beverly Hotel swimming pool, where Mike and Marilla first meet, to scenes on a sailboat and a tour of Marineland, then shift East for scenes of New York's glitter world and fashion salons. There are also stage rehearsal scenes involving Dolores Gray, who sings "There'll Be Some Changes Made."

As for the Helen Rose-designed clothes worn in the pictures—the ladies will have a field day. The celebrated designer whipped up 38 creations for Lauren Bacall who, as Marilla, changes her clothes nine times a day, and she has conceived spectacularly imaginative gowns for the fashion show sequence.

Tom Helmore as a Broadway producer, Mike Shaughnessy as a punch-drunk fighter who sleeps with his eyes open, Sam Levene as a belligerent sports editor and Chuck Connors as a tough guy aid stars Perk, Bacall and Gray in making "Designing Woman" a fun frolic. It's just what the doctor ordered.

We are about to realize that the money we spend to help other peoples does not guarantee they will like us.

 The second committee will act if negotiations between the first group and the railroad fail to reach an agreement. Six men were named members and include J.  An alternate for a suggested third committee composed of women of the coast to be named for contact work, was the naming of Mrs. Mabel Green, secretary of the local and Coast Chambers of Commerce, who would call on women and organizations if and when their services were needed. Vorbusch read a telegram received by him dated June 20 signed by members of committees named at Tuesday's meeting. Artigues who had been asked to take the chair by Gaudet after the committees had been voted on, suggested Vorbusch wire Whitsett advising him of the meeting with the information that a conference of committee members would take place within a week and a joint meeting could be arranged between the RR and the committee within ten days or less.
 Several attempts were made at Tuesday night's meeting by individuals who wished to offer suggestions on schedules, etc., of the RR. Both Gaudet and Artigues refused to allow discussion on these subjects, constantly reminding the gathering the meeting had been called for the purpose of naming representation who would devise strategy and present the most practical plans for a possible amicable settling of situations between the people and the L. & N.
 Artigues recommended all suggestions be carefully thought out, briefed and mailed to a clearing address for the committee to review. Selections of the most practical would be presented to officials of the RR. A member of the gathering suggested the Sea Coast Echo be used as a mailing address. This was agreed to by the Echo's publisher, Sam Ballard, as a temporary arrangement. He advised all persons sending such letters clearly address them to The Citizen's Committee, c/o Maurice Artigues, so as to assure their not being confused with the newspaper's correspondence.
 The public will be kept informed of all proceedings and results on meetings between committees and the railroad, with such information made available to them through the medium of the press.

Four Mississippi A-H Club members who were chosen as the state's outstanding leaders left last week to attend the national A-H Club conference in Washington. They are Rodney Henderson of Jackson, Janice Burritt of Gulfport, Nancy Landers of Bay St. Louis, and Kenneth Boutwell, Jr. of Ocean Springs.

close of this month
reorganization of Hancock County will
in operation under the

reorganization of Mr. E. E. Breland and the Hancock County School Board, while the schools in Bay St. Louis have been under the appointed board of Mayor and Commissioners of Bay St. Louis with one elected member for the added territory. The only school district added to the Bay St. Louis Municipal District under the reorganization was that of Waveland. The State Finance Commission refused to organize Waveland as a Municipal District because of the fact that there were not sufficient students to maintain a elementary school with one teacher for each grade and had no high school for any facilities for caring for colored pupils. Waveland was given the choice of becoming a part of the County unit or that of the Bay St. Louis Municipal District. They chose to become a part of the Bay St. Louis Municipal District. And the school has been operated as such during the past year. After the reorganization was completed and Waveland became a part of the Bay St. Louis School System, the Board of Trustees of the Bay St. Louis School System set up a school center at Waveland, and continued the operation of the school as it had been formerly operated during the season of 1956-57.

Beginning with the season of 1957-58 the school will operate classes in Waveland, Miss., for the first, second, third, and fourth grades with one teacher for each of these grades. The Board of Trustees under their authority given to assign students to centers for the best interest of all concerned will transport pupils in added territory in grades five through 8 in Waveland to Bay St. Louis. The future plans of the Board are to increase the Waveland Center to include grades five and six as soon as additional facilities may be provided. Bay St. Louis Public School will change to the 6-6 plan of organization next year with an elementary supervisor, Mr. Delos Smith, supervising grades from 1 through 8 in the different schools of the City System. Included in 7-12 plan will be under the system of Joe D. McCulloch who will act as High School Supervisor and High School Principal. This arrangement will make possible a closer touch of the classroom teacher with the Administration of the City Schools System. There will be two additional teachers added to the faculties of the white and colored schools which will consist of 38 white teachers and 14 colored making a total of 53 teachers. The school will also employ a lunchroom supervisor whose duties will consist of planning of meals, buying food for lunchrooms and supervising the four lunchrooms in the Bay St. Louis Public Schools. We have served 22,515 lunches in the four lunchrooms during the season 1956-57, at an expense of $22,478. With an enrollment of 1316 pupils in the Bay St. Louis Public School during 1956-57 the problem of providing lunchroom services for this number of pupils becomes a large problem of financing and managing, this necessitating the use of a supervisor who is especially trained in this field. Proper lunchroom facilities have become a vital part of every school system.

With the reorganization of the school system of Hancock County many people have been confused as to the territory contained in each of the two units of Hancock County. The only territory included in the Bay St. Louis Municipal District is the territory formerly known as the Edwardsville and Blue Meadow districts, with the addition of Waveland. The school districts of Clermont Harbor, Lakeshore and Logtown are part of the County unit and will be operated as County School. The High School pupils from these three districts will continue to come to Bay St. Louis High School as they have done for a number of years on a tuition contract basis with the Hancock County School Board.

Under a formula set up by the reorganization of the state schools, pupils coming into a Municipal District from a County unit pay tuition from state and county on the same basis as for the education of the pupil living in the district to which they are sent. Advanced registration for the season 1957-58 indicate a possible enrollment from 1400 to 1500 students in the Bay St. Louis Public Schools.

WHOLE-HOUSE AIR CONDITIONING

Adaptomatic
CENTRAL AIR CONDITIONER

Forget everything you ever heard about central air conditioning. Now, for a ranch or two-story home, for Cape Cod or Contemporary, there's an easy, economical solution to whole-house air conditioning. In place of old-style air conditioning systems that had to be engineered on the site from separate units, you can enjoy an all-in-one air conditioner that's completely factory-built... assembled... tested... the amazing new Fedders Adaptomatic. Say good-bye to expensive cooling towers, water bills, engineering costs. Fedders Adaptomatic takes residential air conditioning out of the luxury class.

alterations—big, big installation savings

In addition to its low cost, the Adaptomatic slashes installation expense. It's no longer necessary to cut an 8-square foot hole in exterior walls, to build special dormers. Adaptomatic locates anywhere to minimize costly ductwork.

Gulfport's Marine Corps Reserve Unit In 2nd Week of Training

Gulfport's Marine Corps Reserve Unit, the 1st Armored Amphibian Company, is well into its second week of intensive training now after a week-end of liberty on the West Coast. 105 millimeter howitzers together with hand and rifle grenade practice will round out this year's training for the Gulf Coast Marines.

Reunions, planned and unexpected, highlighted the weekend of liberty for the Mississippians. Sight seeing and beaching coupled with perfect weather left the men somewhat reluctant to come the end of the training period coming so soon.

Staff Sergeant Ray Booth took in the sights at Tijuana, Mexico, Los Angeles and Hollywood. While dining at the Mollin House in Hollywood, he was somewhat taken aback to find his brother Jim there. They had not seen each in over 11 years. Sgt. Booth makes his home with his wife, Mary Jo at 3514 Pass Road, Biloxi.

Corporal August A. File, Jr., was visited by his two brothers, Seaman William F. File and Seaman Thomas E. File. The two Navy men are attending radio school at San Diego. Cpl. File lives with his wife, Joyce, at Hardy Court, Gulfport.

Sergeant James R. Steward, who resides on Route 2, Gulfport, with his wife, Anna, located his brother Private Cal R. Steward who is undergoing infantry training at Camp Pendleton. Cal is a member of the "Rebel Platoon" composed of all Mississippi boys who enlisted and went to Marine Boot Camp together. Many other friendships were renewed with men of this platoon some of whom were members of the 1st Armored before enlisting in the regular Marine Corps.

Sergeant Pat Herron, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Herron, Park Avenue, Madisonville, Kentucky, visited with his aunt and a cousin in Santa Ana, California.

Sergeant Ronald B. Ballus, who lives with his wife, Melba, at 905 New Street, Biloxi and Pvt. Judson S. Locke, Sr., 39, 38th St. Gulfport spent a total of 12 hours at fabulous Disneyland. They went on most of the rides.

Other visitors to the Los Angeles area and Disneyland were, Pfc. Christian G. Christovich, son of Mr. and Mrs. George N. Christovich, 203 Texas Street, Mississippi City; and Pvt. Clyde J. Bourgeois, son of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Bourgeois of Waveland.

Pfc. Bobby L. Gibson, son of Mr. and Mrs. James S. Gibson, 921 Manto Street, Pascagoula, toured Hollywood visiting the CBS, NBC and ABC television studios, the Brown Derby and dined at the Mulon Rouge before taking in the sights at Disneyland.

Pvt. John E. Wittmann, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Wittmann, 521 East Second Street, Pass Christian, spent the weekend collecting a tan on the sandy beaches of Oceanside, Long Beach and Laguna before viewing Los Angeles.

Pvt. Maurice D. Carlisle, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Carlisle, Route 7, Hattiesburg, visited San Diego's famous zoo at Balboa Park and went down into Old Mexico for sight-seeing.

Sgt. William P. Simpson, son of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Simpson, 3325 11th Street, Gulfport, made a camera tour into Tijuana, Mexico, enjoyed the sun at the Marine Corps Recreation Center at San Onofre Beach went dancing and saw a talent show at the local USO.

All members of the outfit enjoyed to the fullest, the many sights and ideal weather on the Coast of California.

ATTEND FUNERAL IN NEW ORLEANS

Mrs. Pauline Heitzmann, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Heitzmann and Mrs. John Damborino motored to New Orleans Wednesday, where they attended the funeral services for Mrs. Margaret Coogan, a long-time friend of the family, who died on Monday. Mrs. Coogan had many friends here and at one time owned a home on Hancock Street.

REHEARSAL SUPPER

Mr. and Mrs. Jens Larsen entertained at a rehearsal supper the evening preceding the marriage of Mrs. Larsen's son Donald Levy to Miss Ann Hubbard. The delightful different event, a wedding rehearsal supper, was an authentic Swedish Smorgasbord prepared by Mr. Larsen. Seafood was used exclusively in the assortment of dishes. Pink and white gladiolas circled in a flat arrangement were centered with hydrangeas and used as the decoration.

A gold quilted bar, created by Mr. Larsen held liquid refreshments for the guests. The party was held at the Ruelia St. home of the hosts.

Guests included members of the bridal party, families of the young honorees and a few close friends.

The bride gifted her attendants with beautiful bracelets and the bridegroom presented his attendants with handsome tie clasps. Mrs. Larsen received her guests wearing a charming beige colored pure Japanese silk two piece frock. She presented the bride with a gladiola corsage.

Economics of Cotton Defoliation Studied

State College, Miss.—Under what conditions does cotton defoliation pay? This is one of the questions which the USDA and the Mississippi Experiment Station seek to answer at the Delta Branch Station of Stoneville.

A wide range of plant conditions at the time of defoliation was encountered during the period of the study, 1949-55. Plant height varied from 30 inches to 6 feet and foliage from light to very heavy. Net returns to defoliation over the entire period ranged from a profit of $3.21 per acre to a loss of more than $23 per acre with 5 of the 7 locations studied indicating a loss.

The largest contributing factor to the losses was reduction in yield, which amounted to as much as 20 per acre. The greatest item was reflected in quality where increases as high as 50 per acre resulted from the use of defoliation. Losses for the seven locations, over the 3-year period, averaged $8 per acre.

Comparisons indicate that conditions exist under which defoliation will produce marked economic returns. These conditions include rank growth and heavily fruited cotton which matures in the presence of adequate moisture. By the same token, conditions frequently exist under which no such economic return can be expected. These are marked by small, drought-stressed, heavily fruited plants, from which many leaves have fallen due to natural causes.

The report, written by Dr. Grady B. Crowe and Dr. Harry R. Carns, of the USDA Research Service, is published in the June issue of Mississippi Farm Research. It may be obtained from the Delta Branch Station at Stoneville or the Experiment Station at State College.

For the two extremes in plant condition the decision as to whether or not to defoliate becomes rather simple, the authors point out. For those situations lying between the extremes, the decision must be reached by weighing the presence and intensity of factors as they occur in each field each year.
